LAS-JB - CAPSULES (LUNGS, ALLERGIES AND SINUSES-JEANNE BURGESS) Horseradish is an excellent herb to clear out the breathing passages when congested and to counteract allergic reactions. The question is - how can it be taken or used? Of course, it can be ground into a pulp and eaten, or hold the head over the pulp and breathe it in from the fresh pulp. For future use, the ground pulp can be kept in a closed glass jar and refrigerated until needed. Once the jar is opened, the aromatic part (air borne portion), which performs the function of cleaning the air passages and handling allergic reactions, is rapidly evaporated into the air; the Horseradish goes "flat" and thus becomes ineffective. Nor can a liquid extract of Horseradish capture its aromatic property. So, if you don't always have fresh Horseradish around or a fresh, refrigerated jar to open, what do you do? The solution is to carefully dry the Horseradish, powder it and seal it up in a capsule. Then, when an attack occurs, it is available and ready in a convenient form. Once sheer desperation and necessity had introduced the accomplished American herbalist, Jeanne Burgess, to the relief given, by swallowing a spoonfull of Japanese Horseradish while far from home and in the throws of a terrible allergic attack with breathing problems and swelling, she decided to share it with the world. It is from this experience, and its fortunate conclusion, that this Formula comes to us. Japanese Horseradish was added to the list of other established herbs, all of which, on their own, are known to help breathing problems and soothe allergic attacks. When an herbal combination of Japanese Horseradish and the other herbs were joined, a powerful and reliable combination for quick relief of allergy attacks, swelling, pain and breathing problems resulted. And that is the story of the herbal combination L.A.S.-J.B. and friend of all those who need allergy relief.
