SLIPPERY ELM - Nutritive, soothing, coats; heals even bed sores when powder is applied externally. Coats sore throat, and heals internal ulcers wherever they may be in the digestive tract or intestines. Excellent food for people who "can't eat anything". Slippery Elm corrects burning irritations of the female tract, enlarged prostate, painful testicles, remedies mumps (painful, inflammatory, contagious viral "dis-ease" of the salivary glands) and soothes the bowel. Slippery Elm also takes another kind of "burning" out of the body and protects against it - that of radiation. Slippery Elm is a good source for the B-Vitamins, Thiamine, Riboflavin and Niacin (B-1, B-2 and B-3). DOSE:40 drops to 1 Tbl., 3 times per day, depending on the severity of the case. 20 drops per day after 7th month of pregnancy to aid easy delivery. If sore throat, let drops trickle down the throat throughout the day as needed. If mumps occur in adulthood, for the man the condition can lead to sterility, thus, the urgency of taking measures to correct a condition that in a child might not seem as great in importance. 1 Tbl. of the extract, 4 times per day, and 30 to 40 drops of Black Cohosh, internally, 3 times per day, and apply a similar amount of Black Cohosh to the swollen areas or the salivary glands, hourly, until better. In children, 1 tsp. of Slippery Elm, 3 times per day, and apply Black Cohosh in a similar manner. To remove radiation, 1 tsp. to 1 Tbl., 1 to 3 times per day. To protect against radiation accumulation, 1 tsp. per day.*This product has not been evaluated by the Food and Drug Administration.
